IFAP announces Michael Morgan
as new Managing Director

The Industrial Foundation for Accident Prevention (IFAP), established in 1972, is a Western Australian, profit-for-purpose, member-based organisation providing work health and safety (WHS) advocacy, consulting, and training services to members and to industry, government and not-for-profits operating across all sectors.

The Board of IFAP is pleased to announce that it has appointed Michael Morgan as its new chief executive and managing director, in preparation of and gearing up to support and assist Western Australian businesses and undertakings in implementation of the new harmonised work health and safety (WHS) legislation commencing in early 2022.

Michael is a current IFAP board member, an experienced health and safety professional, a businessman and lawyer who is a passionate advocate for work health and safety.

Cav. Maria Saraceni, barrister and President of the IFAP Board, said “Michael has been an active member of the IFAP Board for the past 2 years working collaboratively with fellow directors in steering IFAP through a period of necessary restructure, and being closely involved in setting a new strategy for IFAP to rebuild and rejuvenate. The IFAP directors believe that Michael has the necessary industry experience, skills, attitude, and energy to lead IFAP to a new period of sustained success in achieving its work health and safety focussed Constitutional purposes.”

On being appointed to the new role, Michael Morgan commented, “It is an honour and privilege to be appointed to the executive leadership role at IFAP. I feel a great sense of responsibility and duty to lead the IFAP team proactively and positively to enable IFAP to become a work health and safety centre-of-excellence for Western Australian industry.”

IFAP has just announced the return of the IFAP / CGU SafeWay Awards for 2021, with a refreshed and expanded suite of 10 work health and safety award categories. Applications are now open, and winners will be announced at the gala award ceremony on 15 October 2021 at the Crown Towers, Burswood.
